Imagine a social media app where you can build and play mini games on your phone in just minutes—no coding needed. This platform is designed for creative, social users who want more than just scrolling through videos or images. It's about interacting, creating, and having fun with friends in a whole new way. What makes this platform special? It's the first to let users create real-time 3D models and turn them into games instantly. We've cracked the tech challenges that held this back for years, optimizing everything so we can bring interactive content to social media. With in-app purchases, ads, and partnerships with influencers, there's a huge opportunity to tap into a $100 billion market.
